University Course Catalog Description:

Designed to provide guidelines for the principal as manager and leader of change through decision-making, motivation, group dynamics, and co-empowerment with the teacher.

Additional information on the course as related to decision making and leadership:

This course provides a study of decision-making theory applied to Leadership for Educational Administrators as well individuals and organizations. Also, this class provides a comprehensive theory of how people cope with decisional conflicts concerning management of educational and other organizations, career choice, marriage and a variety of other significant choices.

One objective of this course on leadership is to increase understanding of issues as related to decision making: theory and practice, functions in organizations and role in society. You will study concepts and theories related to decision-making. You will learn to apply theory and course materials to decision-making challenges and opportunities.

In addition, this course is designed to give students an understanding of what it means to act “ethically,” the tools to identify and analyze ethical issues and knowledge of the ethics to make decisions.

Decisions are made in personal and professional life every minute of the day. Understanding how those decisions are communicated and the resulting consequences provide a great perspective on history and community.

By reading appropriate written material, visiting guests who make decisions as part of their jobs, and writing reflectively about our own decisions, we can hopefully improve the quality and assessment of choices we make. This should help in each of your quests to become leaders in education and administration.

The ethical content of this course is not intended to be prescriptive nor to be viewed in isolation. Instead, it is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion in the area of ethics as it relates to decision making.

We're going to look over their shoulders of leaders in educational administration, critique the cases, and offer our own ideas on how the situation was, or should have been, handled – based on the principles and techniques we've studied.

The Steps to Decision Making:

There are seven key steps to decision-making:

- 1 Define correctly the real decision to be made
- 2 Understand the context in which the decision needs to be made
- 3 Identify the options
- 4 Evaluate the consequences of each option
- 5 Prioritize the options and choose one
- 6 Review the decision taken (possible re-work)
- 7 Take action to effect the decision

Course Map:

The following is an outline of the order in which we plan to take up – in classroom work, discussions, exams, presentations, Journals, and Book Review, as well as other online work – the various subjects covered in our reading.

Additional reading in other sources will be assigned as appropriate to the general subject being studied. Guest speakers also may make online presentations from time to time to enrich the subjects and give students the opportunity to trade ideas with practicing professionals. The course outline is presented as a “map” to give us direction... when a “side road” is appropriate, we will change paths. Thus, consider this a guide, subject to adjustment. In other words, the outline is subject to change, depending on the speed with which we cover the material.

1. Use correctly the grammar, spelling, punctuation, and sentence structure of Standard Written English.
2. Develop ideas, themes, and main points coherently and concisely.
3. Adopt modes and styles appropriate to their purpose and audience.
4. Be clear, complete, and effective.
5. Carefully analyze and synthesize material and ideas borrowed from sources. In addition, the sources of the borrowed material should be correctly acknowledged to avoid plagiarism (see Plagiarism).

Academic Honesty:

Violations of the Honor Code are serious. They harm other students, your professor, and the integrity of the University. Alleged violations will be referred to the Office of Judicial Affairs. If found guilty of plagiarism, a student might receive a range of penalties, including failure of an assignment, failure of an assignment and withholding of the final course grade until a paper is turned in on the topic of plagiarism, failure of the course, or suspension from the University.

Violations of Academic Integrity: Violations of the principle include, but are not limited to:

- Cheating: Intentionally using or attempting to use unauthorized materials, information, notes, study aids, or other devices in any academic exercise.
- Fabrication and Falsification: Intentional and unauthorized alteration or invention of any information or citation in an academic exercise. Falsification is a matter of inventing or counterfeiting information for use in any academic exercise.
- Multiple Submissions: The submission of substantial portions of the same academic work for credit (including oral reports) more than once without authorization.
- Plagiarism: Intentionally or knowingly presenting the work of another as one's own (i.e., without proper acknowledgment of the source).
- Abuse of Academic Materials: Intentionally or knowingly destroying, stealing, or making inaccessible library or other academic resource materials.
- Complicity in Academic Dishonesty: Intentionally or knowingly helping or attempting to help another to commit an act of academic dishonesty.

- Not providing adequate references for cited work.
- Copying and pasting large quotes or passages without properly citing them.

Title IX Compliance:

Chaminade University of Honolulu recognizes the inherent dignity of all individuals and promotes respect for all people. Sexual misconduct, physical and/or psychological abuse will NOT be tolerated at CUH. If you have been the victim of sexual misconduct, physical and/or psychological abuse, we encourage you to report this matter promptly. As a faculty member, I am interested in promoting a safe and healthy environment, and should I learn of any sexual misconduct, physical and/or psychological abuse, I must report the matter to the Title IX Coordinator. If you or someone you know has been harassed or assaulted, you can find the appropriate resources by visiting Campus Ministry, the Dean of Students Office, the Counseling Center, or the Office for Compliance and Personnel Services.

Disability Access:

The University is committed to providing reasonable accommodations for all persons with disabilities. This syllabus is available in alternate formats upon request. Students who need accommodations must be registered with Student Disability Services. Students with special needs who meet criteria for the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) provisions must provide written documentation of the need for accommodations from the Counseling Center by the end of week three of the class, in order for the instructor to plan accordingly. Failure to provide written documentation will prevent your instructor from making the necessary accommodations. If you would like to determine if you meet the criteria for accommodations, contact the Counseling Center at counselingcenter@chaminade.edu.

Education Division Attendance Policy:

As stated in the Chaminade University Catalog, students are expected to attend all classes for courses in which they are registered. Student should notify their instructors when illness or other extenuating circumstances prevents them from attending class and make arrangements to complete missed assignments. Not meeting the attendance requirements may result in lowering of the grade, withdrawal from the course, or failing the course.

1. Excused Absences.

Since it is expected that students will participate in all class sessions, excused absences are only granted in exceptional situations where evidence is provided by the student to the instructor. Students should notify their instructors when a situation prevents them from attending class and make arrangements to complete missed assignments. While notification of the instructor by a student that he/she will be absent is courteous, it does not necessarily mean the absence will be excused.

In cases where excused absences constitute a significant portion of a course's meetings (e.g., more than 20% of on-ground course meetings, or a significant portion of online or hybrid courses), the instructor should refer the case to the Dean with a recommendation on how the case should be handled (e.g., withdrawal or incomplete).

2. Unexcused Absences.

Chaminade University student policy states that in cases where unexcused absences are equivalent to more than a week of classes, the instructor has the option of lowering the grade.

Online courses and online portion of hybrid courses. The instructor will specify and enforce expectations for online participation and receipt of assignments appropriate to the design of the course.

Additional comments about attendance and student academic work obligations:

Be sure you understand the emphasis on assignments and exam due dates (a form of virtual attendance for online courses), as this is yet another introduction to the professional work world, where you are expected to be punctual and reliable – two qualities essential to your success. Furthermore, as a leader in education administration, it's important to get your work done each day and every day to keep your desk clear and be ready for tomorrow's challenges and opportunities.

Class Activities and Assignments Comments:

Students will be expected to complete all class readings, activities and assignments. Their contributions to online class discussions should be both frequent and meaningful. Assignments may include, but are not limited to, reading, writing, teamwork, Internet and library research, and oral presentations. All course assignments will be due on the designated date. Assignments are to be completed and submitted by the assigned times. Assignments not turned in on time are considered late. Late assignments will be accepted only for 48-hours after the due date; after which time the assignment will not be accepted. Only up to one assignment may be turned in late during the duration of the class. Late assignment scores will incur an automatic reduction of 20% of the point value. Students who do not meet the deadline will receive Zero points on the assignment. Exams are to be completed on the final date. There will be no options for being late or absent on an exam. If you miss it, your score will be recorded as a zero in the grade book as well. Problems or conflicts must be discussed with the Instructor in advance of the due date. If students encounter a legitimate emergency, please contact the Instructor immediately.

For finished drafts and homework assignments use your computer to give your instructor a copy.

The Hackley rule will apply to all copy submitted for grade; that is, misspellings and errors in fact will result in an automatic F/ZERO POINTS. There will be a little more leeway on punctuation and grammar, but not much. If such an assignment is not accepted because of excessive errors in spelling, grammar, or organization, at the Instructor's discretion, the assignment may be returned to the student for revision and resubmission. Remember, it is the goal of each student to produce a finished assignment in a form and manner that you would be proud to submit to an employer or client.

For the purposes of this class, though, I'm going to approach everyone as if he or she is a potential professional and expect a level of effort, attention, and participation consistent with achieving that goal. We have a great deal of ground to cover in this class, so it will be a good idea to keep up with all readings and assignments.

Closing Remarks about the importance of thank you notes:

Thanks!

Writing a thank-you note says you care. The implied message is that the sender took the time necessary to compose, write, and send a note that is only for the recipient. In this age of uniformity and mass production, your note—in your unique handwriting—is like no one else's. And since only 4% of job applicants send thank-you notes (Doyle, 2012), your extra effort could put you among the top contenders for an open position. "Most people personally dislike the act of writing thank you notes," states Fletcher (2012), "so when they get one, they appreciate the time [and] dedication you took" on their behalf.

In contrast to a thank-you email or e-card, either of which can be easily discarded without opening, the handwritten thank-you will be opened and read—if only for the sheer novelty of it. Be sure to handwrite both your and the recipient’s addresses (Fletcher, 2012); otherwise, your note may be trashed as junk mail.

Though the recipient may not remember how you looked or what you said during the meeting/interview, the note prompts him or her to think positively about you nonetheless. Someone who takes the time and effort to write a thank-you must be courteous, attentive, thoughtful, and mindful of details—in short, the type of person most of us would welcome as an employee, contractor, or supplier.

Sample note...

Preparing for this class has proven to be a personal test of stamina, determination and humility. Quite fulfilling is the feeling of being able to contribute to many students’ academic experience. This class has put me in communication with many people and underscored the importance of building relationships. This is my time to say “thank you.”

Specifically, I want to thank my family. Their patience and understanding as I read and prepared for this course were greatly appreciated. Thank you for the direction and many invaluable suggestions to both write this syllabus and teach this class – Leadership for Educational Administrators.

Finally, I wish to express my gratitude to the distinguished faculty and students of this fine institution for making this both an enjoyable and memorable teaching experience.

Gratefully,

TLH

In closing, thank you notes are a vital part of a successful public relationship building process. Let’s be sure to practice writing them as often as we can. The above is an example of how simple they are to conceive. Trust me; they will enhance both your personal as well as professional endeavors in life.

Quotes... This I have learned:

“He that has choice has trouble,” Dutch Proverb

“When one basis his life on principle, 99 percent of his [her] decisions are already made,’ Author
Unknown

“I must have a prodigious quantity of mind; it takes me as much as a week sometimes to make it up,” Mark Twain

“Indecision becomes decision with time,” Unknown Author

“Inability to make decisions is one of the principal reasons executives fail. Deficiency in decision-making ranks much higher than lack of specific knowledge or technical know-how as an indicator of leadership failure,” John C. Maxwell

“Whenever you see a successful business, someone once made a courageous decision,” Peter Drucker

Final words...

With that all being said, now shall we begin by learning about Communication, Ethics, Decision-Making, and Problem-Solving as related to Leadership and Educational Administration.

And, this syllabus is subject to change as announced online in Canvas at any time.
