NOTES:

This is a writing intensive course so expect to be at your computer for a reasonable length of time. We will have text assignments according to the syllabus headings and according to where we are with our respective screenplays. Since each student will approach the creative endeavor differently, the structure will be emphasized right from day one. Standard industry format allows for no new writing styles...even if you are the next Quentin Tarantino. We will schedule a meeting at your convenience during and towards the end of the course.
