Texts: Understanding Human Sexuality
	By: Janet Shibley Hyde and John D. DeLamater
	McGraw Hill, Seventh Edition

	Sexually Speaking
	By: J. Davis Mannino
	McGraw Hill, 1999

Description of Course:
	This course is an overview into the world of Human Sexuality. Human sexuality is a board concept that involves who we are as people, our identity as a male or female and how we portray ourselves with other people we come in contact. Topics include friendships, intimate relationships, sexual relations, and sexual disorders.

Students are responsible for:
- Keeping up with the text and workbook readings,
- being active participants in class activities and discussions,
- attend class regularly,
- take tests on scheduled dates, and
- obtain copies of class notes from another student when absent.

A note on attendance:
	Each of you brings a rich history and unique perspective that can be shared in activities and class discussions. This course has been designed to maximize class activities and discussions that are difficult to duplicate in a classmate's notes, therefore regular attendance is highly recommended. Your participation is an important part of the class and some of the information covered during class may not be in the text and may appear on tests.
	It is also highly suggested that you read the chapters prior to class. Reading the material will allow you time to ponder what you have read, reflect on how the information may affect your life and bring any questions to class.

Grading:

We will have 3 essay tests throughout this course. The test will be taken from the reading assignments, lectures, and /or any class activities. Each test will be worth 100 points and graded according to the attached grading rubrics. The total number of possible points you can earn for these tests is 300. You can also earn 100 points for written assignments that will also be graded according to the rubrics.

If you take an exam after the scheduled date, you could be penalized up to 10 points.

361 - 400	90%	A
321 - 360	80%	B
281 - 320	70%	C
241 - 280	60%	D
<241		F

Extra Credit will be assigned on an individual basis as needed and at the discretion of the instructor.
