REQUIRED TEXT: Personality and Personal Growth by Robert Frager & James Fadiman, 4th edition, Addison Wesley Longman, Inc.

(You will need to read this book, so best buy it

Course Description:

Personality Psychology can be defined as the scientific study of the psychological forces that make people uniquely themselves. In this course we will cover the various components required to develop a comprehensive theory of personality. As well as covering the major theorists in the field, you will be looking at your own personality, defining your own theory of personality and exploring the decisions you make about behavior, attitude, friendships, career choices and other aspects of your life. This course will extend beyond the usual confines of personality theory to include Eastern thought.

Expectations:

On-Line courses are considerably harder than traditional classes. The time you would be in class is spent at your computer terminal. It is absolutely imperative to do the reading. You are expected to read all the assigned chapters. If the reading is not done, it will show up in the assignments. Class discussions take place on the "Web Board" (link provided), and it is expected that you will respond to the discussions in an intelligent and respectful manner. It is expected that you will keep up with the weekly assignments in the form of the reflective writing, which is designed to support the reading. You are expected to devote yourself, in a comprehensive way, to the term project. There end of the term, which you are expected to make room for in your schedules. Finally, you are expected to contact me if you are experiencing any difficulty.

What you can expect from your Instructor:

You can expect reasonable and concerned support and availability. The preferable contact is e-mail. (I check my e-mail every other day at the latest, for I do occasionally take a day off.) If you feel the need to talk to me in person you may use the toll free number that will be given to you when you register. I prefer e-mail contact, but if it is an emergency the number is provided. However, I am in NY, EASTERN STANDARD TIME!!! That means I am 6 hours ahead of you. If you fail to grasp that and call me at 2am I will hate you and flunk you. I love my sleep and calls at 2 am scare me.

Course Objectives:

Upon completion of this course you will have a strong working knowledge of the major personality theorists in the field. Additionally, you will demonstrate personalized knowledge of these theoretical concepts by developing their own intrinsic personality model. This will become evident in writing assignments, term project and final exam. After completion of this course you will be well prepared for any graduate level course in Personality Theory.

Assignments:

CLASS PARTICIPATION: I will be posting questions to the Web Board every week for discussion. The link is provided. It is expected that you will give a considered, thoughtful expression to these questions. Consider the Web Board a classroom and give it all the respect there accorded.

NOTE: To respond, on the web board, (to the question posted) click on REPLY. (Do not click on POST) When you are replying to my question, you are staying in the classroom. If you "post" a new topic you have left the group. There is a further explanation of this on the web board.

I want you to visit the web board twice a week. These are not real time chats, but I want you to visit on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The first time you visit, you will be replying to the discussion topic, the second time you visit you will be responding to at least one person's thoughts. If you don't do this you will not receive the full grade for class participation. I will be giving you 5 points, for each visit with a total of 10 per week.

Class participation is an important part of this course. It keeps you connected with others, and allows us all to get to know each other and reflect on the topics at hand.

Papers:

We need to talk about these, and you need to listen carefully. The way I know you are doing know you as students, and through my feedback you will get to know me as an instructor. It is vital that you support your reflective writings with what you have been learning through my lectures and the textbook. If you do not show me, in a comprehensive way that you are devoting time to the class there is nothing I can do. Your feedback will be minimal, as will your grade.

The best way to do this is to cite from the textbook to support your work and thoughts. I receive many thoughtful, well-cited papers. If I receive a couple of paragraphs of non-engaged writing, you will not be doing your job as a student in this class.

I will assign exercises for you to do before you write. They are support exercises from the text book. The title of our text book says a lot. "Personality and Personal Growth." What I AM NOT interested in is two pages of journal writing and personal stuff. The exercise is merely to show you the way to the theorist! It is very important that you tie you paper into the reading and the theorist. There are a couple of exceptions, which will be noted in the assignments heading in the weekly lectures. .

Show me you understand why we are doing the exercise. Show me how it relates to you, and the theorist, or you will not get the credit. There will be a total of 10 papers due, each worth 20 points for a total of 200 points. These will be due on Monday's. The general length is 2-3 pages.

Compose your papers on word or similar, then cut and paste to e-mail. I WILL NOT OPEN ANY ATTACHMENTS. I simply have too much to lose if I get a virus, and they are spread through attachments.

VERY IMPORTANT NOTE-this can be an intense course. If you feel you are going too deep and you are getting uncomfortable flag the event (issue), note your feelings and get with an appropriate professional. Consider it a nice perk, for greater insight and understanding of whom we are is the whole point. But don't ever feel that you are being forced to reveal things you would rather not. There is PLENTY of room to treat these papers with detached academic interest. In fact, I demand at least 50% academic detachment. I DO NOT WANT 2 pages of personal ramblings. The exercises and writings are only meant to get you in the right frame of mind to understand what the theorist is trying to tell you.

TERM PROJECT:

This is a very important part of the course. It is an investigative, interactive project. As you learn about the theorists and explore your own feelings, you will naturally start developing your own intrinsic theory of personality. What your theory will not have in common with those you are studying is its comprehensive nature. You will not be defining a global personality theory. Recognize that the theorists devoted a lifetime of work to their theories and moved beyond their own intrinsic theory. Saying that, the personal history of the theorist is vital in understanding the theory, hence your own history is vital in understanding your own intrinsic theory. But, I do NOT need to hear your whole history! Edit!

The guidelines for this project are as follows:

You will explore the realms of thought, feeling and behavior (and spirit if you choose). Each of these realms must be explored in order to attain a personal theory that is thorough. Then, you will plug in a theorist who matches your own feelings on each area. You will be adding your own personal reflections, but a requirement is to recognize a theorist for each realm, and explain why this fits your own intrinsic model.

These papers are generally 10 pages long.

In order to get a handle on the complexity of the material here are some questions you might want to ask yourself:

- How do humans develop?
- Consider the significance of nature/nurture in your own life.
- How does your own developmental process effect your personality?
- Do you see any universal patterns?
- How do you perceive gender differences?
- What role does the unconscious play in your world?

Consider the process of change:

- How do people change?

- What leads to that change?
- Is it conscious, unconscious or both?
- In what areas is change most likely to be felt-thought feeling or behavior, spirit?
- How does change work for you? What are your expectations?

When asking yourself about your own bibliography, consider these questions:

- What has been your cultural experience?
- What was your family of origin like, and how has that affected you?
- What is your Religion/Spirituality?
- What significant childhood memories can be brought to bear?
- How do you relate to the cognitive realm, how does your mind work?
- How does career/social status fit into your personality model?
- What is your relationship history?
- Does your health or environmental issues affect your personality?

Final Exam:

There will be a comprehensive final on the main campus. Exams generally fall on a Saturday afternoon, 10 weeks from the start of class. It will be worth 100 points, and I will be giving a review. If you are taking this on the mainland it is your responsibility to line up a proctor. Education centers on military bases can help. Have the proctor contact me for details.

OVERVIEW OF CHAPTERS COVERED:

lecture):

Week One-Chapter 1

Week Two-Chapter 2

Week Three-Chapters 5 & 8

Week Four-Chapters 3 & 13

Week Five- Chapters 7 & 14

Week Six-Chapters 4 & 6

Week Seven- Chapters 9 & 10

Week Eight- Chapters 11 & 12

Week Nine-Chapters 15 & 16

Week Ten- Chapter 17

Pet Peeves:

1. When you submit your papers, write in the subject line, your name, the class you are in, and the week you are submitting.

Example: (Subject Line): Jane Doe, Psy 321, Week one.

I receive a lot of mail, and this helps keep everyone straight. If you have question keep it separate from the papers. In the subject line write: Question from _____.

2. SPELL CHECK YOUR PAPERS!!!!!! I mean it. If you don't know how to do this, find someone who does and ask them. This is an upper division class. You have all had your English classes by now, and are doing Junior level work, so it is time to push yourself out of sloppy habits. This goes for all correspondence.

3. I request greetings and salutations on correspondence (not on papers, as those should have headings). This form of communication and the world in general is very fast. When we pause for a second to write salutations we keep proper decorum, and it allows us, even for a second, to think before we speak. This is also a practical request, for when you fail to sign your name I have only your e-mail "handle" to go by and searching through my files to find out who "hotlics" is makes me grumpy.

Thank you ahead of time for attending to these small requests.

Grading:

Class Participation=100 points

Weekly Papers =200 points

Intrinsic Personality Theory =100 points

Final Exam=100 points

500-450=A

350-300=D

300 below=F

More about Grading:

"On-Line" courses tend to be harder than those in the classroom. They are writing intensive, and move very fast. Serious students manage their time well, and are self-disciplined. You will get a lot out of this course if you put the time into it. If you dash off the work, without doing the reading or engaging in the material in a personal way, I will know and you won't get the grade. Saying that, I fully expect you to do well, and I am here to support you. If you have any questions, or need my help let me know!

AND FINALLY.....

Many have come before you, and although all this may seem overwhelming you will quickly get into the swing of things, learn a lot and have some fun. It generally take 2 weeks for the "dust to settle" so don't panic. I am here to help.

PLEASE CONTACT ME IF YOU ARE NEED CLARIFICATION ON ANY PART OF THIS SYLLABUS!
